Understanding the Interview Process

What do employers want to accomplish?
As a result of the interview, employers want to answer the following:

Are you qualified for the position?
- Does your educational and professional background, including acquired knowledge and skills, align with the position requirements?
- Do your past experiences provide you with transferable skills needed for the role?
- Can you adjust to change and adapt to a new environment?

Will you complete the tasks the job requires?
- Does the organization align with your career goals?
- Are you a motivated person who is eager to conquer new assignments and tasks?
- Are you willing to learn on the job?

Will you fit into the team or organization?
- Are you a team player?
- What is your ideal supervision style?
- How do you respond to feedback? Criticism?
- Do you have the skills needed to build and maintain relationships with others?

What makes you stand out in comparison to other candidates?
- Does your resume highlight several experiences that will make you more memorable to the interviewer?
- Are you a genuine person who cares about the position and/or organization?

Common Types of Interviews

The Preliminary or Screening Interview:
Not always used in the interview process, this is an easy way for employers and/or hiring agents to screen the candidate pool. Skype and phone interviews are most common; however, each can serve as a regular interview as well.

- Telephone: Used to determine if a candidate meets the minimum requirements before extending an offer to an on-site interview
- Skype: Can be used to narrow down the applicant pool while saving travel time and costs

The In-Person Interview
For some, this may follow a screening interview; for others, this is your round one interview. The style used will vary as will the number of times an organization asks its candidates to interview.

- One-on-one: A single interviewer will interview one candidate
- Panel: More than one person interviews the candidate at the same time
- Group: A group of candidates are interviewed by a panel or an interviewer
- Meal: A candidate is interviewed while eating, usually over lunch
- Working: The applicant is given a task to perform and is observed and assessed by an employer or hiring agents
- Behavioral Interview: Can be conducted in a variety of styles such as the one-on-one or panel set-up. Involves a series of questions focused around the logic that past behavior predicts future behavior.
- Case Interview: Detail-specific interview in which an applicant's ability to handle complex problems is assessed.
INTERVIEW NUTS & BOLTS

Preparing for the Phone Interview
Check off that you completed the following

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Determine Your Availability</th>
<th>Schedule the interview for a time when you can give the hiring agent or manager your full, undivided attention. The length of the interview will vary. Block off extra time before/after to leave time to prep and for questions you may have.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Preparation Research &amp; Take Thorough Notes</td>
<td>Thoroughly review the position description. Highlight the words that are repeated within the document and make notes on how your current experiences and accomplishments target the position qualifications. Research the organization ahead of time using the organization’s website, Google, and LinkedIn account if applicable.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dress for Success</td>
<td>To put yourself in an interview mindset, it is recommended that you wear some type of business attire.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Have a Greeting Prepared</td>
<td>Answer the phone by stating your first and last name. This lets the caller know exactly with whom they are speaking, and enables the other person to clearly hear how to pronounce your name.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Be Prepared with Notes and Questions</td>
<td>Have notes on the organization, a copy of your resume, and the job description by the phone. Use these documents to help organize your thoughts and to prepare questions to ask the employer at the end of the interview.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Embrace Silences</td>
<td>During the interview, the interviewer will be taking notes. Do not be surprised if it takes a minute in between your responses for the person on the other line to get organized. Wait to speak! Use these pauses to collect yourself and prepare for the next question.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pause &amp; Ask Questions</td>
<td>Before you respond to a question, think! Responses should be clear, concise and highlight your skills and abilities. Refrain from using the non-words “like,” “ah,” or “um” to fill silence. Do not be afraid to pause and ask for clarification if necessary.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Be Positive</td>
<td>Whenever possible, smile! The positive energy and enthusiasm you express will be augmented in your voice. Due to the nature of a phone interview, it’s important to “turn up” your personality to make sure it is conveyed as well as it would be in person.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Close with a Verbal and Written Thank-you</td>
<td>Close by thanking the person(s) for their time and consideration. Reaffirm your interest in the position and highlight the attributes you would contribute to the company or organization if hired. After the interview is finished, send a thank you letter by e-mail that evening to again outline your interest in the position.</td>
</tr>

Preparing for the Skype Interview

Check off that you completed the following

| Set the Scene | • Use your background to establish a professional atmosphere.
|               | • Look for a quiet space that is warm, inviting, and not too busy.
|               | • To avoid the interviewer(s) from getting distracted by your background, position yourself in front of a blank wall.

| Conduct a Trial Run | • Test your webcam, speakers, microphone, and internet connection ahead of time.
|                    | • Check the computer camera height.
|                    | • To practice and to confirm that your technology is working properly, have a friend or family member Skype you.

| Dress for Success | • Wear an outfit that would be acceptable for an in-person interview.

| Professional Body Language is Key | • To convey yourself well: maintain good posture, speak slowly and clearly, and lean in toward your webcam to show interest. Place your computer on a flat surface and sit in an up-right chair.

| Look at the Camera, not the Screen! | • Eye contact shows that you are focused and prepared.
|                                    | • Staring directly at the camera prevents the interviewer from thinking you are constantly looking away from the screen and will help refrain you from getting distracted by your own image.
|                                    | • To help avoid staring at your own image on the computer screen, cover your image with a post-it note.
|                                    | • Make sure all other computer applications and programs are closed so you do not get distracted during the interview.

| Plan for Technological Difficulties | • Plug your computer into a power outlet, and keep your phone on hand in case the interview mode changes at the last minute.

| Take Advantage of the Distance | • Keep your resume and/or notes in front of you to help answer any questions the interviewer(s) may ask.

| Prepare Questions Ahead of Time | • Following the interview, the employer will ask you what questions you have about the position or the organization.
|                                | • To impress the employer, ask thorough questions that will help you gain insights to the daily operations of the position and company culture (See page 11 for examples).

| Be Cognizant of How you are Presenting Yourself | • To the best of your ability, remember to breathe, smile, and let your personality shine.
|                                                | • Be honest with the interviewer(s), especially if this is your first time doing a Skype interview!

| Close with a Verbal and Written Thank-you | • Close by thanking the person(s) for their time and consideration.
|                                          | • Reaffirm your interest in the position as well as highlight the attributes you would contribute to if hired.
|                                          | • After the interview is finished, send a thank you letter by e-mail that evening to again outline your interest in the position.
Preparing for the On-Site Interview

<tr>
<th>Know Your Resume</th>
<th>Use this document to talk up your skills, the knowledge you have gained, and the relevant projects and other tasks that you helped develop.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Research the Company</td>
<td>Learn as much as you can about the culture of the organization and the employer through the organization’s website, Google, and the organization’s LinkedIn account.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
| Be Prepared with Questions | The job description provides an overview of the position; however, it does not include everything.
- Come to the interview prepared with a list of questions about the nature of the position, company environment, and daily operational functions (see page 11 for sample questions).
- This is your opportunity to show the employer that you have done your homework! |
| Dress Professionally | First impressions are a vital component to the interview process.
- To make a positive statement about yourself, follow the tips on page six. |
| Plan Ahead | Write down the employer’s name, address, and phone number.
- Prior to your interview, look up directions to the interview site and determine how long it will take to commute.
- If possible, travel to the site ahead of time to familiarize yourself with the area.
- In advance of your interview, pack your bag or briefcase with extra copies of your resume and business cards, a pad folio, and a couple working pens. |
| Be Early and Friendly | Arrive about fifteen minutes early. If you are worried about being too early, find a local coffee shop to wait in.
- Sitting in the lobby enables you to get a sense of the organization’s environment and gives you additional time to review your notes and/or resume.
- Treat everyone that you encounter with kindness. Anyone from the secretary to maintenance worker may share their first impressions with the hiring manager. |
| Firm Handshake | Greet your interviewer(s) with a strong handshake.
- This will most likely be the first interaction with the interviewer(s) and will help set the tone. |
| Listen First, then Answer | Avoid rambling and talking quickly by speaking clearly and succinctly.
- Take the time to pause and think through each question fully.
- Make sure to smile, sit up straight, and maintain eye contact.
- Show enthusiasm, confidence, and energy toward the position. |
| Do Not Forget to Ask Your Questions | Use your research to show employers that you are interested in the position.
- Focus on asking about the position responsibilities, the culture of the company, and the expectations of the person who will fill the vacancy. |
| Collect Contact Information | Ask the all the individuals with whom you interviewed for their business cards.
- This will help you to contact these individuals after the interview is finished to send off thank you letters and to connect on social media sites such as LinkedIn. |
| Follow Up with a Thank You Note | Verbally thank the interviewers for their time and consideration. Reaffirm your interest in the position and highlight the attributes you would contribute to the organization, if hired.
- That evening, send a thank you letter via e-mail to all those who have interviewed you. If you are serious about the position, consider following-up with a hand-written thank you letter by standard mail outlining your interest in the position. |
How to Craft your Interview Responses

The STAR and CCAR Methods

One of the best ways to STAND OUT at job interviews is to display confidence and superb communication skills. Giving direct, poignant responses and maintaining a consistent conversation flow will help you to make a positive first-impression with the interviewer(s). To help you practice crafting your responses, consider using the STAR or CCAR models. These are two common frameworks used to clearly and succinctly answer employer’s questions. Review BOTH of these models below to find the one that works best for you!

The STAR Method:

STAR stands for:
- Situation – Begin your story with a brief description of the situation (who, what, where, when, and how). When describing, be as specific as possible to give the interviewer enough detail to understand. Previous job experiences, volunteer opportunities, and other relevant events are items to highlight.
- Task – Next, explain the task you had to complete, or the goal toward which you were working. In this section, highlight any challenges or constraints you may have faced (example: deadlines, costs, uneven distribution of work, etc.).
- Action – Describe the specific actions that you took to complete the task. Highlight the action steps you took as well as the competencies you learned (leadership, organization, problem solving).
- Result – Finish your story by sharing the result(s) or outcome(s) of your efforts. To frame your response, you should be able to answer the following: What happened? What did you accomplish? What did you learn? What would you change in the future? If possible, include numbers to quantify the result (example: increased response output by 60% through streamlining the use of correspondence software).

STAR Example:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Step</th>
<th>Response</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Situation</td>
<td>From August 2012 to June 2013, I served as one of 300 state of California AmeriCorps volunteers.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Task</td>
<td>My goal was to recruit at-risk high school youth from grades 9-12 at Kaynor Tech, and to engage them in after school volunteer opportunities to increase youth academic achievement, civic engagement, and pro-social behavior. These included: weekly visits to a local nursing home, running afterschool programs for third and fourth grade students at two elementary schools, and participating in ongoing community-wide events.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Action</td>
<td>In this role I worked with a guidance counselor to recruit and monitor students’ academic attendance, behavior, and achievement. Throughout the course of the academic year, I also oversaw the implementation of Service Learning Projects on topics including oral hygiene, nutrition, and emergency preparedness. By applying for and receiving the StateFarm Good Neighbor Grant, a $1000 fund, I was able to support these Service Learning Projects. In this manner, I effectively introduced youth and families to various public health careers and established volunteer opportunities for students in this professional area.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Result</td>
<td>As a result of these steps, all twenty-one participating high school students completed more than 75 hours of service in an 8 month period, and eleven of those students received the Presidential Service award for completing more than 200 hours of volunteer service.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
The CCAR Method:

CCAR stands for:

- Context: Begin your story by providing the employer with some context regarding your past experience and its requirements. Items to stress include your job title, the role you played (leader, manager, team member, organizer, teacher, etc.), and the timeline of the project or situation which you faced.

- Challenge: If applicable, describe any specific obstacles that you had to overcome. Identify the challenge and explain the impact it could have made on the outcome of the project if it was not remedied.

- Action: Describe the actions you took to solve the problem or to create new opportunities. In this part of your response you should be able to answer these questions: what efforts did you contribute that made an impact on the problem? What specific steps did you take? What did you learn from the experience?

- Result: Highlight the outcome of your action steps and explain how the organization benefited. Again, try to quantify your results if possible with facts and figures (example: as a result of the new software program, the company saved $445/month).

CCAR Example:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Step</th>
<th>Response</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Context</td>
<td>When I started my position at the US Department of Education as Management and Program Analyst, one of my main responsibilities was to manage and provide technical support to over 50 federal grants including Ready to Learn, Teaching American History, and Teacher Quality Partnerships Programs.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Challenge</td>
<td>The federal grants ranged in value from $3 - $50 million dollars, and I was in charge of providing annual funding recommendations to senior leaders by conducting regular budgetary and performance measurement reviews of grantees.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Action</td>
<td>To carry out this process, I organized and planned grant competitions for nearly 500 applicants. This included recruiting over 400 peer reviewers, creating reviewer training materials and FAQ sheets, and answering public inquiries.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Result</td>
<td>I worked in conjunction with the peer reviewers to select 30 applicants to receive federal financial support for their projects.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

BE PREPARED! Use these frameworks to think about how you could highlight your past experiences. Then, PRACTICE your responses aloud in front of a mirror, with a friend, or by using Interview Stream: http://tspppa.gwu.interviewstream.com/.
COMMONLY ASKED BASIC INTERVIEW QUESTIONS

Getting Started:
- Walk me through your resume. What led you to a Master of Public Policy/Administration? Why did you choose The George Washington University?
- What skills have you learned at the Trachtenberg School, and how can you apply those skills in this position?
- What is the most important thing you have learned from a specific class or specific work experience?
- What is your preferred working style? How do you learn best?
- Why do you want to work here? What would you expect to find the most satisfying about this job?
- What would you expect to be the most challenging?
- What do you hope to learn or gain from this experience?
- Tell me about what you like to do in your free time.
- What is your preferred working style: individual or collaborative?

Career/Professional Development:
- Why do you want to leave your current organization?
- What are your career goals and how does this position align with your professional objective?
- In what ways do you stay up-to-date in your area of expertise?
- What type of news/TV/media do you follow? What do you try to get from it?
- How are you different from other candidates who have applied?
- What are you least excited about doing in this position? How would you tackle the tasks that you do not enjoy doing?
- In what ways will this role help you stretch your professional capabilities?
- What is one area in which your last supervisor would suggest you gain more training or exposure?
- Where do you see yourself five years from now?

Salary Questions:
If possible, try to avoid giving a salary range/figure first by responding that you are very interested in the position and are interested in knowing if there is a range budgeted for this role. If you must give an answer, be sure to do your research and give an appropriate range. Please refer to the Career Guide: Negotiating Your Compensation Package available on the TSPPPA website for more specific details.

- What is your salary expectation if offered this position?
- What did you earn previously and what you are hoping to make if we offer you this position?
BEHAVIORAL QUESTIONS

Leadership:
- Tell me about a time when you accomplished something significant that wouldn’t have happened if you had not been there to make it happen.
- Describe a time when you were able to step into a situation, take charge, muster support, and achieve good results.
- Tell me about a time when you’ve had to manage a team. What was your approach?

Initiative/Follow-Through:
- Tell me about a goal that you set that took a long time to achieve or that you are still working toward.
- Describe a time when you went above and beyond for a client.
- Tell me about a situation that you had significant impact on because of your follow-through.

Thinking/Problem-Solving:
- Tell me about a time when you had to analyze facts quickly, define key issues, and respond immediately or develop a plan that produced good results.
- Tell me about a problem you had to solve or an obstacle you had to overcome in your work experience or in your coursework. How did you go about it? In retrospect, what would you have done differently?
- Tell me about a time at work or school when someone asked for your input on the best way to approach a problem.
- Describe for me a situation where you may have missed an obvious solution to a problem.

Communication:
- Tell me about a time you had to speak in public. How did you prepare for the presentation?
- Give me an example of a project where you faced issues as a result of communication and/or cultural differences with the process and the outcome.
- Share with me a time when you realized you needed to change your communication style to fit the audience.
- Tell me about a difficult conversation you’ve had to have.
- Tell me about a situation where you had to be persuasive and sell your idea to someone else.

Working Effectively with Others:
- Tell me about a group project where one of the group members was difficult to work with or did not pull his/her weight. How did you handle this?
- How would you approach a project situation where two key stakeholders have conflicting requests?
- Tell me about a time when you were able to motivate others to get the desired results.

Priority-Setting:
- How do you approach managing a project? What is your process of ensuring that goals are met?
- Tell me about a time when you were faced with an impossible deadline. What did you do? What was the outcome?

Varying Work Conditions:
- Talk about a time when you may have worked on a project and your supervisor failed to provide much direction for the project. What did you do?
- How do you deal with frustrating situations?
- Tell me about a situation where you had to adjust quickly to a significant change at school or work. How did the change affect you? What did you do?

Other:
- Give me an example of a time you received constructive feedback. How did you react?
- Tell me about a time when you had to conduct research or learn a new skill in order to perform a task. How did you go about it? How did you perform?
- What’s something you struggled with in school?
- What do you think is the most difficult part on a rotation program to a foreign country: language, culture difference, or something else?
Public Policy and Public Administration Focus:
- What areas of public policy or administration particularly interest you? Why?
- Tell me what the most important item on your resume is and how it best represents your passion for public policy/administration.
- Describe your commitment to service.
- What research have you undertaken in the field of public policy/administration?
- What are some current policy issues in which you personally, if given the opportunity, would like to be involved?
- Tell me about your experience with quantitative and/or qualitative research. How comfortable are you working with large data sets?
- How will the policy analysis skills you gained as a graduate student be applicable to this position?
- What do you think are the traits that make a successful leader in public administration? Which of these do you embody?

Nonprofit Focus:
- Why do you want to work in this industry?
- Describe your passion for our mission.
- How can you help our organization achieve its goals?
- When were you most satisfied in your job?
- What motivates you?

International Development Focus:
- How do you define effective international development?
- What experience do you have forming international and domestic partnerships?
- What motivates you to work in international development in the U.S. or overseas?
- Describe your experience managing project budgets and supervising staff on an overseas development project: what problems did you encounter and how did you handle them?
- What experience do you have writing proposals or fundraising?
- Describe a time in which you obtained funding or reported on the progress of a project to an agency?

Academic/Research Related:
- Describe your research. Tell us about your research program. What are you working on currently? What do you plan to look at next?
- What audiences are you addressing, what are the other relevant books or scholars in your field, and how does your work compare with theirs?
- Can you explain the value of your work/research to an educated layperson?
- What are your plans for publishing?

Why does this matter?

Many people think that the interview is finished when the interviewer has finished asking all of his/her questions. HOWEVER, many interviewers draw conclusions based on the questions you ask—or don’t ask. To give the impression that you are invested in the organization, ask questions about the position, organization, and team culture.
After The Interview

The Thank You Note or Email

Within twenty-four hours, follow-up with a sincere and succinct thank you note or email addressed to everyone with whom you interviewed. In your letter, be professional and genuine. Personalize your thank you to include any specific details you learned and/or connections you may have made to make you more memorable. Above all, your thank you note or email should be free from grammatical errors and spelling mistakes. A good rule of thumb is to have a peer read over your letter before sending it to the interviewer(s).

Dear Dr. Last Name,

It was a pleasure meeting with you today and I appreciate you taking the time to share your insights and perspective.

I thoroughly enjoyed having the opportunity to learn about World Learning’s priorities and future growth, as well as how you envision the Advancement Officer position supporting the continuation of the organization’s success. Our conversations about service learning and professional development services for high school and undergraduate students, alumni relations, and national visibility reinforced my strong interest in this position.

I am confident that my background and skills are an ideal fit. In hearing more from everyone about the organizational culture, I know that World Learning is a place where I could contribute and thrive.

Thank you again!

Dear First Name Last Name:

Thank you for taking the time to speak with me today about the Staff Assistant position. It was wonderful hearing from you, First Name Last Name, First Name Last Name, and First Name Last Name to gain deeper insight into the US Senate and the desired qualifications for the Staff Assistant.

In knowing First Name for several years, I absolutely agree with your comment that he will have big shoes to fill, but it gets me excited thinking about the chance to build upon this strong foundation. As was asked today, while on paper this may seem like a lateral move, in actuality, the position offers me a new opportunity to focus my skills and experience on programming, and tracking legislation regarding banking, finance, tax, housing, trade and business issues on the structure and systems that Paul established. In addition, the way that the US Senate is positioned in the public service arena allows for different types of partnerships and programs that I would love to promote.

Finally, I also wanted to address further your answer today about a lack of staffing being one of the biggest challenges. Throughout my career, this is often a challenge I have faced at other organizations and one that I approach with creativity, resourcefulness, drive, humor and yes, some caffeine! I thrive on balancing multiple moving pieces and having a diverse workload, so I am confident in my ability to work with the staffing challenge.

Thank you again for your time - I would love to have the opportunity for an in-person interview with you and your team soon!

Sincerely,

First Name Last Name

Dear Professor Last,

It was a pleasure meeting you today over lunch as part of my interview for the Graduate Intern position. I enjoyed speaking with you about my experiences and how they are in strong alignment with this position.

Thank you for sharing Trachtenberg's history and your insight into how the school is integrated within The George Washington University as it was very helpful to gain this past and present perspective! At this time, I remain very much interested in the position, and am looking forward to learning of your decision soon.

Sincerely,

Dear Dr. Last Name,

It was such a pleasure meeting you today and also having you attend the afternoon presentation. From our University of Maine connection to your suggestion that I take my heels off for the presentation, I appreciated your energy and warmth!

Hearing this morning from you, Dr. Last Name, about the goals and priorities for the Center for Service and Civic Engagement was incredibly helpful in providing perspective on the JumpStart Program Coordinator position. It reinforced my confidence in the alignment of my highly relevant background, knowledge and skills and how this could contribute to the Center for Service and Civic Engagement’s continuing success.

To follow up with our conversation regarding the Peace Corps, my friend First Name Last Name is the Service Learning Coordinator. You may reach her at name@peacecorps.gov. I will let her know that you will be in touch.

Thank you again for your time, energy and insights!

Sincerely,

Dear First Name Last Name,

It was such a pleasure meeting you today during the staff panel! Thank you for taking the time out of your day for the interview and to share your perspectives on the Coordinator position within the Office of Global AIDS.

Having the opportunity to hear all of your insights into what makes the organization special; the role of Coordinator, and your hopes for the future was incredibly helpful. Our meeting reinforced everything I have been hearing about the U.S. Department of State community, which is very much aligned with who I am and what I could offer to the organization.

Connecting with all of the staff members today truly was a highlight and I loved hearing the research ideas that were shared. It would be wonderful to have the opportunity to bring these ideas to fruition to support the Office of Global AIDS!

Sincerely,
